CLEVELAND BROWNS

Clay Matthews, The Ironman

By Frank Derry

Clayman celebrates his 15th season

He has now played in more games than any linebacker in Browns' history. He's been to the Pro Bowl four times. And he's been an All-League selection on three occasions.

But what is probably most impressive about Clay Matthews is not his long list of past accomplishments. Rather, it's the fact that after dishing out and receiving punishing blows for 200 NFL regular-season games (he hit the 200 mark in Week 16 last season), Clay Matthews remains one of the most solid and dependable outside linebackers in the league.

"Most people who understand football know I'm still going to line up and win most of the plays I'm in on," said Matthews matter-of-factly. "There's always a couple of plays a game you'd love to have back and do over. But I'll win most of the plays."

There are three big reasons why Matthews remains a very productive outside linebacker.

- No. 1, he keeps himself in outstanding physical condition.
- No. 2, he's an excellent student of the game.
- No. 3, he always gives 100 percent on every play.

"I don't want to sound like I'm blowing my own horn, but I've always tried to have good techniques; I've always tried to play with a lot of effort. I think my success has been a result of a mixture of all three."

Matthews gives a great deal of the credit for his success to the three men who were starting at linebacker when he first arrived in 1978 as a first-round draft choice out of the University of Southern California.

There was outside linebacker Gerald Irons, who taught Matthews the need to be 100 percent physically prepared.

■ Clay Matthews

"Gerald Irons was a very skilled athlete who not only was very talented, but he also was a superbly conditioned athlete," Matthews recalled.

On the other side was Charlie Hall. "Charlie was really a marginal athlete as far as his weight, speed and strength. But he had excellent techniques, he was very smart and, therefore, was a very productive player."

The third member of the starting trio was middle linebacker Dick Ambrose. "Dick Ambrose was my roommate and he was really one of my favorite players because, here again, was a guy who, if you looked strictly at his physical numbers, the computer would have spit him out as a reject.

"But he was very smart and he worked real hard at the game. Basically, above all, he played with a lot of tenacity. He could be blocked, but he refused to be blocked by the sheer presence of his will."

Matthews took the best of all three approaches and molded them into his own single game plan.

The results have been impressive, to say the least.

He landed Pro Bowl spots in 1986, 1988, 1989 and 1990, and was an All-League selection in 1984, 1988 and 1989.

Heading into the 1992 season, he had 1,236 career tackles, 62 quarterback sacks, 19 forced-fumbles, 14 fumble recoveries, 12 interceptions and four blocked field goals.

The key for Matthews is the fact he still very much enjoys the game, although there are times he admits to feeling his age (36).

"Some days I come home and swear I will not be able to finish the season," Matthews said. "But then the next day, I feel like I could go another two years."

At one point a few years back, Matthews thought he might enjoy finishing up his career with a Southern California team (he makes his off-season home in Los Angeles), but now he thinks it would be an honor to play his entire career with one team.

"I really enjoy playing here," said Matthews, who along with his wife Leslie, has five children — Jennifer (11), Kyle (10), Brian Clay (7), William Clay III (6) and Casey Christopher (3).

Matthews and his family live in Strongsville, Ohio. Looking ahead, Clay recently opened a car dealership in the Cleveland area.

Hall of Famer Lou Groza leads the Browns with 17 years and 216 games played, although Matthews is gaining.

And just how much longer does he plan to play?

"At least another 10 years, wouldn't you think?" Matthews said with an impish smile.

Realistically speaking, Clay Matthews should be good for another year or two. And if that's the case, he'll gently kick Lou 'The Toe' right off the No. 1 rung. ■

Bernie Kosar completed 13 of 22 passes for 107 yards and one touchdown vs. the New York Giants. To date, Kosar has not had an interception.

Right guard Ed King (Auburn), the Browns' second round draft pick in the 1991 NFL Selection Meeting, stops the New York Giants' defensive end Mike Fox. at the line of scrimmage.

Kevin Mack rushed 20 times for 71 yards and caught four passes for 22 yards and a touchdown vs. the New York Giants. Mack was voted Browns' player of the game by a local media panel for his efforts.

Tie-Breaking Procedures

The NFL uses the following procedures to break standing ties for postseason playoffs (and determine regular-season schedules).

To Break a Tie Within a Division

If, at the end of the regular season, two or more clubs in the same division finish with identical won-lost-tied percentages, the following steps will be taken until a champion is determined.

1. Head-to-head (best won-lost-tied percentages in games between the clubs).
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the division.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
4. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games (if applicable).
5. Best net points in division games.
6. Best net points in all games.
7. Strength of schedule.
8. Best net touchdowns in all games.
9. Coin toss.

To Break a Tie for the Wild Card Team

If it is necessary to break ties to determine the two wild-card clubs from each conference, the following steps will be taken.

1. If the tied clubs are from the same division, apply division tie-breaker.
2. If the tied clubs are from different divisions, apply the following steps:

Two Clubs

1. Head to head, if applicable.
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games, minimum of four.
4. Best average net points in conference games.
5. Best net points in all games.
6. Strength of schedule.
7. Best net touchdowns in all games.
8. Coin toss.

Three or More Clubs

(Note: If two clubs remain tied after other clubs have been eliminated, tie-breaker reverts to step 1 of applicable two-club format.)

1. Head-to-head sweep. (Applicable only if one club has defeated each of the others, or if one club has lost to each of the others.)
2. Best won-lost-tied percentage in games played within the conference.
3. Best won-lost-tied percentage in common games, minimum of four.
4. Best average net points in conference games.
5. Best net points in all games.
6. Strength of schedule.
7. Best net touchdowns in all games.
8. Coin toss.

BROWNS

■ Bill Belichick

Head Coach Bill Belichick was chosen to get the Browns back on track after their last-place finish in the AFC Central Division in 1990. He was named Cleveland's head coach on February 5, 1991, and took the Browns to a 6-10 record in his first season. That got Cleveland out of last place. Belichick was defensive coordinator of the New York Giants' team that led the NFC in 1990, giving up just 262.9 yards in total offense per game. The Giants also allowed the fewest points in the NFL in 1990 (211). Belichick, who was the youngest head coach in the NFL last year at age 39, also was defensive coordinator when the Giants won Super Bowl XXI over the Denver Broncos. He joined the Giants in 1979 as a defensive assistant and special teams coach, then took over as linebackers coach (1981-82). He was named defensive coordinator in 1983. Belichick began his coaching career in 1975 at age 23 as a special assistant at Baltimore. He was tight ends, wide receivers, and assistant special teams coach for the Detroit Lions (1976-77), then moved to the Denver Broncos as assistant special teams coach/film coordinator in 1978.

Background Played football and lacrosse at Wesleyan (Connecticut) University, earning a bachelor's degree in economics. His father, Steve, was a fullback for the Detroit Lions and was an assistant coach at the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, for 33 years.

Personal Belichick was born April 16, 1952, in Nashville, Tennessee. He and his wife Debby live in Brecksville, Ohio. They have two children, Amanda and Stephen.

Coaching Staff Ernie Adams, offensive assistant; Jim Bates, defensive line; Steve Crosby, running backs; Al Groh, linebackers; Hal Hunter, offensive line; Richard Mann, receivers; John Mitchell, defensive line; Scott O'Brien, special teams; Nick Saban, defensive coordinator; Phil Savage, defensive assistant; Jerry Simmons, strength and conditioning; Kevin Spencer, offensive assistant; Gary Tranquill, quarterbacks. ■
